A Maple Seed inspired design can replace parachutes as a decelerator, and be controlled. A maple seed can be interpreted as a wind turbine, and with that understanding can lead to novel applications.

The student will expand on the work of application of the maple seed as a decelerator, and its control.

The student will learn about design, control, Intellectual Property, and perform tests of the devices.
No special experience is necessary.